VARKALA - KERALA - INDIA

Rest Assured, Naturally...

Varkala is a quaint little fishing hamlet, just 50 kilometers from Thiruvananthapuram International Airport (Capital city). Along the rocky shoreline of Varkala are a couple of coves with many a virgin sandy beach. Thiruvambady Beach with its exotic silvery black sand is the all-time favorite. Krishnatheeram is perched on the rock formation cliff, hugging the Thiruvambady Beach. Spread over half-an-acre of prime land this tastefully laid out and spanking new resort with an ethnic architecture is indeed a warm and welcoming sight for sore eyes. The contours of the land and the coconut palms have been judiciously left intact with a marvellous open-air restaurant overlooking the beach and offering stunning views of endless sunsets setting the horizon ablaze every evening.

Things to do and places to visit

Hiking, Cycling, visits to the local markets are all some of the popular pastimes here. The 800-year-old JANARDANA SWAMY Temple and the Nature Cure Centre are two major attractions here. The ARATTU festival at this temple is celebrated every year in MEENAM (March-April) commencing with KODIYETTU (Flag hoisting) of KARTHIKA day ending with ARATTU on UTHRAN day. The festival lasts for 10 days. A colorful procession led by caparisoned elephants in which ornamental silk umbrellas, peacock fans etcetera are carried, is one of the prominent features of the festival.

SIVAGIRI MUTT, the final resting place of the renowned social reformer SREE NARAYANA GURU is yet another pilgrim centre. According to ancient Hindu beliefs bathing in the sea off the coast of Varkala cleanses you of your sins and hence it is often referred to as the PAPANASINI, or sin-reliever in local parlance.
